Green is a central recurring feature at Hydroplant as the Swiss company specialises in integrating plants in building and room concepts in an aesthetically attractive manner although such plants are often feared by architects and designers alike. It has, after all, been proven that plants exert a positive influence on the interior climate and the feeling of well-being of the users. If the impression is created that the workstations cannot be seen for the sheer jungle in Hydroplant's headquarters, there is good reason in this case because it is simultaneously a showroom for plant installation suggestions.

Whether as room dividers, plant walls, plant islands or in combination with plant-holders with more of a sculptural format – Depending on the area of use, there are different suggestions for the use of plants. The open mind swivel chair is used for seating in Hydroplant's office. Photos: © Hydroplant
