

Reference projects

IBM Italia

Architects: Isola Architetti, Torino

IBM Italia S.p.A.
Via Circonvallazione Idroscalo
Segrate (Milano)
Italy

Year built: 2004
Furniture:
open up, wien, let's fly, no limits

Informal meeting zones have been furnished with the let's fly chair. At the open space workplaces, the wien swivel office chair can be seen as a special feature. It consists of an integrated clothes hanger and, for personalization, a holder for a personal business card.
Photos: © IBM Italia

The new IBM head office in Italy was necessary in order to improve the company's business processes. Too many different buildings in the main city of Lombardy housed the diverse departments. Now, at the new, concentrated location near Linate airport, processes have been re-organized and appropriate spatial situations and workplaces created. The majority of employees work in the open space area. For informal meetings and project work, there are numerous options. Management offices, conference and concentration rooms can all be observed through glass partition walls.

IBM Italia

Architects: Isola Architetti, Torino

IBM Italia S.p.A.
Via Circonvallazione Idroscalo
20090 Segrate (Milano)
Italy

Year built: 2004
Furniture:
open up, wien,
let's fly, no limits

The conference rooms are furnished with no limits - whereas the project-work staff in the open space office sit on wien swivel chairs.
Photos: © IBM

